Digitec Joins GMM Group: Creating a European Hub for Medical Imaging and AI

Seriate (Bergamo), Italy – 23 July 2026

GMM Group (General Medical Merate) is pleased to announce that, effective today, Digitec has officially joined the Group, creating an even stronger, more comprehensive and innovation-driven player in the European medical imaging and biomedical sector. The combination of complementary expertise in hardware, imaging technologies and artificial intelligence marks a significant step forward in the Group's growth strategy.

This transaction represents far more than a corporate integration. It brings together complementary expertise, decades of experience and a shared strategic vision, creating new opportunities for technological innovation and international expansion.

Under the new structure, GMM Group and Digitec will strengthen operational and commercial synergies while preserving their respective areas of specialization and ensuring full continuity for customers, partners and ongoing projects.

The integration will also accelerate research and development, enabling the Group to deliver increasingly advanced, proprietary technologies and further strengthen its competitiveness in global markets.

Monica Sordi, CEO of GMM Group, commented: "We have always regarded Digitec as a company of outstanding value and strategic interest. Over the years, we have come to appreciate the quality of its technology and have collaborated successfully on its development, achieving important milestones together. Through this shared journey, our teams have built strong relationships and, naturally, have become one. We are excited to embark on this new chapter together, looking ahead to a future defined by even closer collaboration and increasingly ambitious, innovative projects. We are delighted to welcome Digitec into the Group—or rather, into our family—with the mindset of those who value excellence, rather than simply acquire it."

Simone Re, Managing Director of Digitec, added: "We are building an Italian technology hub capable of competing on the global stage. The timing was right, and when the right opportunity comes along, you need the courage to seize it. On our own, our growth would have been slower; together, we are entering a completely new league."

In GMM, we found people who share our ambition—people who invest, who challenge themselves every day, and who are never satisfied with the status quo. Together, we will go further and move faster. That's why we said yes."

The agreement includes GMM Group's acquisition of 100% of Digitec, while the Re family will join GMM Group as a minority shareholder, reinforcing a long-term industrial partnership built on shared growth and strategic alignment.

Today, more than ever, we believe that bringing together complementary companies and expertise is the key to building industrial groups capable of meeting the challenges of increasingly intense international competition and the rapid pace of technological innovation.

GMM Group | General Medical Merate

Founded nearly 75 years ago, General Medical Merate (GMM Group) is one of the world's leading designers and manufacturers of medical radiology systems.

Its extensive product portfolio reflects continuous investment in research and development, supported by decades of engineering expertise and a constant commitment to technological innovation. GMM's solutions are designed to meet the evolving demands of advanced diagnostic imaging while delivering outstanding ergonomics for both healthcare professionals and patients.

Today, GMM is an integrated ecosystem of specialized companies covering the entire radiology value chain from conventional and digital radiography to mammography (following the acquisition of IMS Giotto), power electronics through Merate Power, and AI-powered diagnostic solutions, including the Galileo and Tiziano platforms. The Group also holds strategic stakes in D/Vision Lab and Milvue.

Alongside its direct operations in Italy, France (through Primax) and China (through IMD China), GMM serves customers in more than 120 countries through a well-established global network of distributors and partners.

An Italian group with a truly global vision, GMM continues to drive innovation in medical imaging worldwide.

DIGITEC

Founded 40 years ago by Fausto Re and two partners, Digitec was built on a simple yet ambitious vision: bringing innovation to the heart of diagnostic imaging.

Today, the company is internationally recognized as a leading provider of technologies for the acquisition, processing and management of medical images. Its solutions are valued worldwide for their quality, reliability and technological excellence.

Behind Digitec's success lies a principle that has remained unchanged since its foundation: innovation begins with people, and technology is its most powerful enabler.
